“ Here it is March and the weather is changing from winter to spring. You would always be like "Let's get started on what we want in the garden this year." This year there won't be much of a garden because it doesn't feel quite right to do that this year. I promise I'll still use the planters you bought me last year. I still feel you around me so I know you still love me as much as I will always love you.

Rose Hasselquist - March 18, 2016 at 03:14 PM

“ Neil, you are still with me each day. I think of you every minute of the day and I look for signs that you are with me. I reach for you each night only to find you're not there, but I still know that you're with me. I love you sweetheart and that won't ever change. Till we meet again you'll be in my heart and mind.

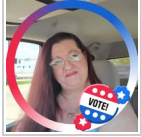

Rose Hasselquist - January 06, 2016 at 10:27 PM

“ I know that it's not much but I still remember our first Christmas together how we thought it was great to have each other and enjoyed the surprises that we had placed under the tree for one another. I loved the way that you made me smile when you put the bow from your present on your forehead like you were a present as well. To me you was the best present that I've ever had each and every Christmas from that time on. Now you aren't with me and this Christmas won't be the same but I'm going to try and make it as good as I can for the children. I miss you so much. Love you to the moon and back Neil.
