“ Today is easter. The first easter spent with out my grandpa, with out you mom and because dads so sick without him to. This is the hardest year of my life. I went out to eat with my little family and saw big tables all put together people hugging. Its hard to even hear the word mom even though I am a mom. I think of you and tears start falling at the weirdest times. I miss you and love you.

“ Mom- It's only been a few days since I lost you. Most of the time I feel pretty numb and I keep thinking I'm in the middle of a nightmare. When it actually hits me that you're gone the pain is almost unbearable. I'm doing my best to stay strong as you and Grandpa would of wanted. I have a lot of what ifs running through my head and I feel a lot of guilt. Living so far apart both myself and my kids have missed out on a lot with you and I will never get that time back. I keep thinking about the things you will miss with the kids. You were my best friend, I talked to you about everything. This past year with my moving and my friends moving, you became the person I talked to about everything. You were my rock and I tried to be yours. I'm sorry I wasn't there more. I miss you so much. I love you mom.
